

Xpand IT and Red Hat announced event JBOSS @ PORTUGAL2013

This event will be focused on the main opportunities to reduce costs and increase business innovation and agility with open source solutions. This year's agenda will feature the Red Hat/JBoss entire portfolio, identifying the mayor technological trends, technical demonstrations and success cases.

Xpand IT - Portuguese company specialized in enterprise middleware and Red Hat - World leader in open source solutions, today announced the event JBoss@Portugal2013. This corporate event will be focused on topics such as Service Oriented Architecture, BPM, Big Data, and Enterprise Applications Platform to discuss the main opportunities to reduce costs and increase innovation and business agility with open source solutions. The event will happen at Myriad Hotel – Parque das Nações – Lisbon, during the next 4th June between 8:45 and 12:30. The registrations are free and now live at Xpand IT website.

At JBoss@Portugal2013 will be explored the new ways that companies have to connect to an ecosystem of innovation and thus support their decisions before the new IT paradigms. The event is aimed at managers in areas such as Information Systems, Strategic Planning, BPM Project Managers, Enterprise Architects, Analysts, Risk & Compliance, among others. The initiative will provide you a vision how the JBoss Data Grid solutions, JBoss BRMS, SOA Platform and jBPM can create value as a tools to implement a business strategy.

In the current paradigm of economic crisis, some experts consider that not make sense to support the expensive cost of proprietary software licenses when exist other solutions with a good maturity level. As the search for alternative open source increasingly clear, this kind of decision can have associated risks. This initiative aims to make known some tools and methodologies necessary for a conscious change management and effective within organizations.
